Southern Trade.-In an article upon "Southern Trade" in the Lynchburg Republiean, in which Virginians are advised to trade with Baltimore, occurs the following:

"Whatever may have been the eccentricities of Maryland politics, no needy Confederate suf-leted in Baltimore for anything money could buy and prison regulations admit.'

We have only to remind our friends of the Republican, that while they speak of what the acad people of Baltimore did for our soldiers and thereby urge them to go there to trade, they chould not forget that many of the merchants of Alexandria were soldiers in the army, and inst they are as much entitled to, and as orthy of, the patronage of Virginians as those the befriended the soldier, and even more soespecially as goods are sold as cheap here as in Beltimore. We regard it as the duty of our breth en of the Press in Virginia, to aid and sustain our own merchants in their endeavors to build an our own cities to the exclusion of all others.

ALEXANDRIAN ROBBED. - The residence of Senjamin H. Berry, Esq., formerly of this city, but now residing in Richmond, was entered on Monday night last by thieves, who visited his bed room and abstracted four silver tablespoons and a set of teaspoons, a silver watch and sundry articles of wearing apparel, male and fe male. Mr. B.'s pantaloons were taken from the foot of his bed, his pocket-book taken from the pocket, rifled of its contents, and the pock-36 book left in the porch. The spoons were marked "M," the watch was a cylinder escapement, four holes jewelled. The robbery was perpetrated between midnight and dawn.

CEORGETOWN.-The Washington Chronicle gays :- "A considerable number of vessels are in the harbor, and business wears a brisk and encouraging aspect. The coal trade is somewhat hampered by circumstances which are unfavorable to its speedy shipment. There are at the whart several vessels receiving cargoes of grain, cement, and other articles of commerce, bound for Southern ports, and in the river a number of vessels of the bay and river craft, preparing for a speedy clearance, with merchandise for various landings."

AN ALEXANDRIA MECHANIC.-From the Louisiana Intelligencer we make the following complimentary extract, concerning our former ownsman, Mr. William Allen. "To the V. 3. & T. R.
